Welcome to the September Link

We hope you have had a good summer so far.

Hats off to the cuckoos. The cuckoo I have been sponsoring through the British Trust for Ornithology, JAC, has made it back south of the Sahara where he is resting up before flying to the Congo to overwinter. His stay in Llangollen was extraordinarily brief but he will be back next year, if he's lucky he could make six complete migrations, flying up to 60,000 miles. You can see all the flight paths on bto.org

Meanwhile, I have been learning about our native Tree Creepers. Sharp-eyed co-editor Bridget spotted a little flutter moving up and down a tree, so small it clearly wasn't an ordinary bird. But yet it is ordinary, just so well camouflaged against the trees they scour for insects that we don't often see them! They live all over the UK and, unlike cuckoos, rarely stray more than 20 kilometres from their breeding grounds. At 12.5 centimetre against a sparrow's 18 they are small but they have a lovely tuneful call which I cannot convert into words.

The drought has been very hard and I so admire how the animals have tolerated it although the cost to farmers in feeding their stock their winter hay early, sheep losing condition etc has been significant. The people haven't done too badly either, siphoning bath water onto the garden, taking shorter showers and more.

Whoever thought we would be looking forward to a wet autumn? Not too wet to enjoy the last few performances of the Hever Festival, I hope - and see the diary on the back of the magazine for all the other autumn events.

pet of the month

Meet Dylan, a 21 month old Boxer with a wilful attitude and selective hearing.

Wikipedia states that “The character of the Boxer is of the greatest importance and demands the most solicitous attention. He is renowned from olden times for his great love and faithfulness. He is harmless in the family, but can be distrustful of strangers, bright and friendly of temperament at play, but brave and determined when aroused. His intelligence and willing tractability, his modesty and cleanliness make him a highly desirable family dog” and this couldn’t be truer for Dylan. When you first meet him out on a walk you will probably hear him before you see him as he likes to greet everyone with a loud bark and although he can look intimidating at first, once you get to know him, his playful, enthusiastic personality shines through. Don’t believe me? Here is what Erin (7) and Austin (4) have to say:

What is the funniest thing Dylan does?

Austin - Licks my face

Erin - When I’m making something, he sneaks in and steals the arts and crafts then runs off with them into the garden

Best trick?:

Austin - Bites my t-shirt and runs away with me still in it

Erin - Chasing anything that moves

What is your favourite thing about Dylan?

Austin – that he loves us

Erin – His cuddles

There is no doubt that Erin and Austin will learn so much from him. His independent mindset will teach them to be patient. He will show them how to live without judgement, because he shows affection to everyone he meets, with a bark, a gentle jump and a tail wag. He also teaches them about unconditional love and how amazing it is to be on the receiving end of it.

Globe Volunteers - part 2

There are two theatres at London's Shakespeare Globe, the open air Globe and the indoor Sam Wanamaker Playhouse (SWP).

It took years to raise the funds to develop the SWP into a Jacobean theatre that Shakespeare would have recognised. Many patrons paid £3000 for a seat on which their names were inscribed, including 300 poverty stricken stewards who clubbed together. Finally, it opened in 2014 and is a beautiful wooden, candlelit space, a "Thrust" stage allowing some 330 audience on three sides, with extraordinary acoustic properties. Sometimes there are some extra seats in the musician's gallery over the stage. You really can hear a pin drop on stage and the actors are so close that they regularly include the audience area in the performance. They use beeswax for the candles, as in Jacobean times, as they do not smoke and smell very nice but beware wax drip issues. It is not all old technology, there's a modern air conditioning and lighting system that can reproduce the effects of a lovely sunrise or a complete blackout, which is very effective when an actor comes onstage just lit by a handheld candle and delivers some chilling lines. Finally there are two trapdoors. A heaven, opens in the lovely hand painted ceiling, from which we have seen some flamboyant descents, and the stage floor trapdoor used to many a good effect.

It is not all plays. One of the most delightful evenings we experienced was classical guitar with John Williams and guests. So intimate, it was as if he dropped into your front room and played a few requests. But that is the SWP, intimate and welcoming. One evening I was stewarding a new play "Farinelli and the King" which was a complete delight. At the interval I turned to the person next to me and said "what a wonderful play, the hairs on my neck are standing up". "Oh good" she said, "I am so glad you like it". Turns out I was sitting next to the playwright and musical arranger!

If you get the chance to go, here is our tip. Choose a seat either opposite the stage in the lower gallery, or at the side of the stage in the front because right there you are just about in the performance.

There is more to the Globe. Below the theatre is the Underglobe a large space once a museum and entertainment area, the venue for the Volunteers' annual party. It has a large tree in it and can be visited as a part of the Globe tours. Future developments include a library and education centre. Restaurant, coffee shop, bars, lecture room, educational centre, wedding venue, shop, it is all at the Globe.

Enjoy.

Orchids behind Hever Castle

Flowers for St Peter's Church Hever – can you help?

As St Peter's Church, Hever is now open to the public every day it would enhance the interior if there was a simple flower arrangement to be seen. We are asking for help to make the Church look more welcoming. Might you be able to offer help? Ideally once every couple of months depending how many volunteers come forward.

HEVER BARN DANCE 2022

After two years break, Hever's infamous Barn Dance is back and it's bigger and better than ever. Yeehaw!!!

A great night out for all the family with dancing in the village hall and two marquees with hay bales for everyone to sit, chat and eat their bbq on. You won't go hungry with local burgers and sausages, salads and splendid home made desserts! The cash and tap and pay bar has beers, wine, including Prosecco and soft drinks to quench the dancers' thirst. Vegetarian options are available, please make sure that you book these so that we can plan the catering!

The band has a great caller who will explain the steps and make sure that everyone has a great time. We always have a wide range of ages from toddlers through teenagers to octogenarians -dancing optional - but fun for all.

Country & Western / Cowboy fancy dress optional, but you may win a bottle of bubbly, with children's prizes too.

To BOOK, head over to Hever PCC (bookitbee.com) events. bookitbee.com/hever

Tickets are £20 per adult and it includes a burger, salads and desserts.

ONLY alcoholic drinks purchased at the bar can be consumed at the event. Any drinks not purchased at the bar will attract a corkage charge of £5 per bottle or £1 per can.

Remembering Elspeth Russell

Elspeth Russell died peacefully at home on 7th July 2022, aged 93, surrounded by her family. Elspeth was known to many in the community as a loving mother to her three boys, Jamie, Bruce and Neil and devoted wife to Andrew. But she was also a lifelong supporter of the local community.

Notwithstanding the final years when Elspeth suffered from dementia, she had a wonderful life. It was shaped by many influences not least her blissfully happy childhood. The prospects weren't great at the outset: she was born prematurely at 32 weeks, weighing just over 3 lbs. Chances of survival then in 1929 were slender but survive she did.

Thereafter, she enjoyed the loving home created by her parents in Hertfordshire. It won't come as any surprise to those who knew her that her father was a big, good-looking man, warm and loving who was able to engage with people, particularly the young. This same empathy for others one saw in Elspeth, as well. And it was via her older brother, Bruce, that Elspeth met Andrew when he and Bruce were medical undergraduates at Clare College, Cambridge and later 'Tommy's'.

Elspeth felt entirely at home in the medical world. In addition to her brother, her father and great uncle were both distinguished physicians (the latter Professor of Medicine at the University of Edinburgh), she and her sister-in-law nurses, and of course Andrew was a GP and an anaesthetist who served the community for thirty-three years. So, she felt entirely at ease supporting Andrew and the wider medical community in very practical ways – taking messages morning, noon and night when Andrew was 'on call' (a never-ending task), hosting dinners for a very active medical society and playing a role in the local Red Cross branch – which she ran for a number of years. And all was done willingly and enthusiastically.

Indeed, Elspeth was an intensely practical person. A 'doer'. In place of debating abstractions she just got on with life. Whether in her earlier years as a nurse (she trained at the Middlesex Hospital), making curtains for the family home, jumpers for her boys or producing beautiful smocking on another dress for one of her granddaughters.

Whilst never particularly bookish, one publication that was a fixture on her bedside table for many years was Lark Rise to Candleford. It described country life at the end of the Nineteenth Century and the fast-dissolving England of peasant, yeoman and craftsman. And this appealed to Elspeth's love of the countryside and the romantic lens through which she saw life. She loved the great outdoors, fishing with the family on the side of some midge-swept loch or recounting her childhood days riding 'Freckles'.

Elspeth was also a proud Scot. Her mother's family came from Ayrshire and were Ship Engineers in Glasgow, her father's family were of Scottish parentage but lived in Northern Ireland. Whilst Elspeth spent most of her life south of the border, she ensured that her family kept in touch with their Caledonian roots. Many carefree holidays were spent north of the border staying with family members, fishing lochs and sailing on the West Coast.

Above all Elspeth was entirely selfless, giving her time willingly to others be it in her younger life when she cut short her nursing to return home to care for her dying mother, or volunteering at the primary school in Hever to teach the little ones how to read. She never expected any reward and never accepted any thanks rather passing the praise onto others.

And as a family we were the beneficiaries of the same selfless devotion. Mum stood no nonsense, but she always put our interests, as children, before hers, witness that ritual the annual family holiday. Many were frankly a bit of an endurance for Mum as we bobbed around on choppy seas in small sailing boats. Mum was actually much happier fishing or painting wild flowers - which she was very good at.

Above all, underpinning Mum's contentment was her marriage to Dad. They were married for 63 years and were inseparable. A touchstone of that relationship was her wedding ring which Mum would lift each day to read the inscription of the date of their wedding until that inscription wore away. In turn, Dad summed up the place of Mum in our lives in his reflections for the family, when he wrote in conclusion: "Elspeth has been, through all the years, my dearest friend, companion, wife and mother, and has given us all such a blissful and united family"

Cloth-making in the Eden Valley

Look into the origins of most of the traditional gentry of the Eden Valley and you will find that if they didn't make their money from ironworks, they undoubtedly made it from cloth.

Geoffrey Boleyn, great-grandfather of Anne, was a classic example. He started his career as an apprentice hatter and went on to become a mercer (or cloth trader) making a fortune that enabled him to gain a knighthood from Henry VI, become Lord Mayor of London in 1458 and buy Hever Castle in 1462. Other families making their fortunes from cloth-making include the Streatfeilds of Chiddingstone, the Pultenays of Penshurst and the Seyliardes of Delaware, Skeynes and Gabriells manors in Edenbridge.

Below them in the chain, was a vast number of poorer people who from medieval times to the 18th century were dependent on the clothing industry. It worked on a 'putting out' system, whereby men called clothiers gave out the raw materials to spinners, dyers, fullers, and weavers who carried out the work in their homes. Alongside these were a further army of workers including sheep farmers, flax growers, milliners, tailors, dressmakers and drapers.

The High Weald was an ideal area for the trade, with good agricultural land, wood providing fuel for heating the dyeing vats, water for soaking flax, and an abundance of 'fuller's earth', a type of clay used to remove grease from wool. Local place names such as Dyehurst Gill, Coomb Field (where wool was combed), or Tainters Hill (where cloth was stretched on frames known as 'tenterhooks'), often give clues to this. Sheep were brought to the Weald from Romney Marsh and Edward III sought to promote the wool trade by inviting Flemish artisans to Kent to develop local weaving skills. There was tension at first, with the English and Flemish setting up rival guilds, but they later united.

By the late 16th century the wool trade began to decline and attempts were made to revive it, including a law passed in 1571 that all working men should wear woollen caps on Sundays and holidays. Later, during the reign of Charles II, an act was passed requiring that corpses be buried in woollen shrouds.

Families who buried their loved ones in linen were required to pay a fine. The Sidney family of Penshurst were fined several times, including in 1683 for the burial of Algernon Sidney, beheaded for his alleged involvement in a plot to murder the king.

Spinning was the first step in the clothmaking process, taking woollen fleece and fibres from flax or hemp and turning them into yarn. It was generally carried out in the home by women and children (hence the term 'spinster') and provided 30% of the income of poor families in the 17th century. Local records show it being used as a solution for poor relief: it was a task taken on by women in the Bough Beech workhouse; in Edenbridge the bridge wardens used surplus cash from rents they received to buy hemp for the poor to spin.

The next step in the process was dying the yarn. Orangy-red came from the leaves of the madder plant, woad produced a blue dye, and weld, otherwise known as 'dyers rocket' produced yellow. Only royalty could wear purple, expensive because it was imported from Brazil.

Weaving was generally undertaken by men and required an apprenticeship of seven years. Most villages would have a small weavers' workshop with just a couple of apprentices, while towns would have more. Records show several weavers' workshops in Edenbridge, including one in the High Street in the property now occupied by Coral's Bookmakers.

A variety of cloth was produced in this area, notably Kentish broadcloth, a heavy woollen fabric produced for the export market. Linen, made from flax, was used for undergarments and household items, canvas made from hemp or flax was used for shirts and aprons. 'Lindsey Wolsey' (mentioned in Cowden parish account books) was a cheaper fabric with a linen warp and woollen weft, used for women's gowns.

The last stage in the process was, of course, the sale of the cloth. From the early 17th century onwards, drapers' shops are recorded in Cowden, Chiddingstone and Edenbridge. Here again we see wealthy mercers owning the shops and taking much of the profit. Nevertheless, it's clear that for at least six centuries cloth-making, along with farming and the leather trade, provided a living for very many of the people, rich and poor, skilled and unskilled, who came before us in the Eden Valley.

The council resumes its regular meetings in September after the summer break. The next meeting is in Hever Village Hall at 7.30pm on Tuesday 13th September, preceded by the Planning Committee meeting at 7.00 pm. Everyone is welcome.

For those who weren't able to attend the Parish Assembly back in May, here is an overview of the report from the Chairman, Angela Haydon : It is three years since our last Parish Assembly. It was a very difficult time for many and thank you to everyone for support and help during the pandemic. During the year Charlotte, Parish Clerk and Responsible Finance Officer resigned, Christina joined and left. Rachael joined in January. Edward de Ryckman joined as Councillor. John Hodson stepped down as Chairman of HPC. All the Councillors thank him for his contribution and tireless commitment to the residents of Hever Parish.

Other points to note:

- With the majority of the community against the scheme, the council agreed not to proceed with the Four Elms affordable housing development.
- A Family fun day took place in August.
- Thanks to Councillor Nick Roberts, HPC purchased Four Elms Pond which was enabled by local donors. The pond had new fencing and the area cleared and tidied. Thanks also to the volunteers who helped and to Scott from Willerby Landscapes
- The Planning Committee volunteer their time to investigate, consider and formulate a view for Sevenoaks District Council with the final decision made by the Planning Authority at Sevenoaks.

- A revised Highway Improvement Plan was submitted highlighting speed issues in Markbeech and Four Elms.
- Requests for restoration work to some verges and improved planning and clearer signage should a diversion be required.
- Environmentally friendly 'smart' rubbish bins were installed in all three villages. Litter picks took place across the Parish. Thank you to all those who took part.
- New benches and tables have been obtained for Four Elms Field.
- Some public footpath repairs have been raised and HPC are looking at ways to help contribute to their repair.
- Grants made to local groups include Eden Valley Museum and the Film Club, and this year towards the Platinum Jubilee Celebrations and Kent, Surrey & Sussex Air Ambulance. Some funding is still available so applications are welcome.
- The end of year internal audit confirmed HPC is compliant with both financial and regulatory requirements, and has demonstrated good practice.
- The Hever.org website has a range of information including; the full Chairman's report, meeting agendas and minutes, links to topics of interest such as Gatwick Expansion, Bus surveys and solar panel grants.

The Chairman thanked the Parish Councillors; all are volunteers who give their time and commitment freely to help improve our local community.

Four Elms village fete 2022

After two year's absence the Fete was back and it didn't disappoint.

Glorious weather and the usual numbers returned to enjoy the variety of traditional stalls and attractions. The fete's purpose remains the same as ever. It is a combination of fundraising and entertainment for the village. Neither being more important than the other. But it seems to be more than just that. It is an opportunity for newcomers to the village to help out and meet up with neighbours. Friday "set up" is a happy day with a lunch provided and an opportunity to get to know each other better.

The Fete Committee is a small, dedicated group, meeting in the village pub on winter evenings planning for the July Fete. Nowadays its mainly communication by email and spreadsheets which is a far cry from the carefully notated minutes of yesteryear.

Thomas Moffat with George,
Best in Show winner

But the outcome is the same – a great day for everyone.

We had fun and games for everyone: coconut shy, bowl-a-pig, welly wanging and in the ring something for all ages, especially the egg throwing. How competitive some people are!!! Pony rides. small train rides and, of course, the Willerby Maze and classic cars, not forgetting the Spitfire flypast.

All this made for a great afternoon with refreshments from the beer tent, the tea tent, BBQ, ice creams and soft drinks. The fabulous plant stall, bric-a-brac, bottle stall were all there with the chance for meeting and chatting to old friends.

This year we seemed to have achieved our wish of many years, a spot on BBC southeast television ... and the national news. Oh yes, Tom Tugendhat opened the Fete. Thanks Tom for dropping by on a very busy weekend and helping us make the national news!!!!

Shepherd Hut Opening

Hever PTA, with the school and governors, were delighted to invite the Chair of Sevenoaks Council to open our eagerly awaited Shepherd Hut with Hever School Head Girl, at the end of the summer term, ready for use in September 2022.

Guests included all the organisations who donated/awarded funds to enable us to build this incredibly special space for all the children, including representatives from Edenbridge Council, Sevenoaks Council, the Great Stonebridge Trust, Gatwick Airport Community Trust and Mylands Paint, as well as Karen and Rob, parents, who project managed the build and completed the hut.

The Hut will be used for interventions and SEN, music groups and break out groups, freeing up other space in the school hall and library and being a completely dedicated breakout space. This calm and neutral space will enable the school to increase its pastoral care options and SENCO support in an aesthetically pleasing and tactile setting.

Thanks were also given to Stirling Site Supplies, John Turnbull, Chris Browne Builders, Sencico, On the Groundworks and Anastasia Sergeef, as well as our private donors who were unable to attend, and of course to all the many members of the PTA who

Hever School Summer Fete

Hever PTA were delighted to announce their incredibly successful community Summer Fete raised just over £3000 which will go directly to the school to support various school and PTA projects.

The fete had a number of lovely stalls, food and activities, as well as providing a wonderful opportunity to visit the school and see the Hever School community at work. Thank you to all who came along and supported us on the day, if you were not able to attend but are interested in a place at our wonderful village school please contact our lovely school administrator Mrs Steptoe on office@hever.kent.sch.uk. She will get in touch about visiting after the summer holidays.

Thank you as always to Hever Parish Council for allowing us the use of the field to run our event.

our rector's thoughts

Hopefully, we will shortly know who is to be our new Prime Minister! The cost of living crisis and big increases in energy costs this coming autumn seem to be the top issues and will put huge pressure on many already living on the edge.

For many of the people to whom Jesus preached, the prayer, 'Give us this day our daily bread' was literally a cry for the day's food and even today many will echo this plea. With that in mind, why did Jesus say so much about money, possessions and anxiety - eleven of his thirty nine parables are on this subject?

Some people complain that the church is always asking for money. But in the Three Spires this couldn't be further from the truth; I can't find when anyone last preached on generosity and giving. So in September I am planning to preach on this very subject. I make no apology for this, notwithstanding the financial challenges many face. I've seen wonderful examples of generosity such as from those who have taken in Ukrainian families. As a church treasurer myself many years ago, I was humbled by the amazing generosity particularly from people of modest means.

In the Three Spires, regular giving in each of our churches has been declining as many faithful givers have moved away or died. Covid has put us under more pressure but we have survived partly because I have been in the fortunate position of offering my ministry on a voluntary basis. Long term I am praying that, with God's help, by the time I retire, our churches will be on a financially sustainable basis and can afford to pay for their Rector. I am confident we will be able to do this as the statistics suggest there are many new people who have yet to start giving regularly and on a per capita basis giving seems fairly modest compared to other churches.

Most importantly though, generosity and giving is good for us. Jesus said: 'it is more blessed to give than to receive' (Acts 20:35). Giving helps us to break the power of money on our lives. Jesus also said: Give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, will be poured into your lap. For with the measure you use, it will be measured to you (Luke 6:38).

So please think and pray about what God might be calling you to do with your treasure, time and talents whether you are a regular church goer or not. The prophet Malachi declared.... Bring the whole tithe into the storehouse... Test me in this," says the LORD "and see if I will not throw open the floodgates of heaven and pour out so much blessing..."

Go on, put God to the test!

Simon

Markbeech

Despite the baking conditions, we enjoyed a delightful summer lunch at Marielou's home in July. The hardest of us turned out in our sun hats and parasols enjoying her pretty garden and delicious salads. There were some pretty good Markbeech puddings in evidence too!

Watching the harvest coming in across the country, and writing this column some time in advance of September with the ground so hot and scorched, it seems hard to imagine celebrating our Harvest Festivals. But now is the time for planning and making dates for diaries! So please make sure you have Friday 7th October in your diary for the Great Markbeech Harvest Supper. This will be a delicious traditional Harvest Feast based around the very best produce that can be sourced as locally as possible giving God our thanks and praise for all our blessings. It will be a time to chat to old friends and to meet new neighbours so please come and join us!

The Markbeech choir will be back in action in September, firstly at our Eucharist service on 11th September and then with the children at the Family service on 25th September. Markbeech is well known for its love of music and singing, so if you would like to come and sing traditional hymns, psalms and anthems or would like your children to learn the joy of singing, please contact Charles@falconhurst.co.uk.

Finally, you will notice some scaffolding popping up around our beloved church. We have taken the plunge of restoring the stonework that has taken a battering over the years. We are very grateful to the Friends of Markbeech Church and the Friends of Kent Churches for their contribution to this work.

Phew, where did the summer go and phew, it was a very hot summer. Although we all seem to love discussing the weather and statistics abound, the seriousness of climate change is concerning. The conundrum is, how can I change habits to make a difference. Certainly lower the heating and a few more jumpers!! Less use of petrol driven cars and lawn mowers!!

St Paul's church welcomed two lovely weddings and we wish both couples much happiness. The PCC also thanks all who helped in various and numerous ways to make the Four Elms Village Fete such a success. Thanks to the great efforts by many, the church stalls raised £4,400. What an achievement.

The autumn heralds the harvest time. The summer drought reminds us of the precariousness of food production here and in the wider world, particularly in the poorest countries who will be hardest hit by the devastation of changing weather patterns. Harvest Festival, a time to give thanks for our relative good fortune, is on Sunday 2nd October and the Harvest Supper will take place on Saturday 1st October in the Village Hall at 7.30pm. The Supper is very popular so please book early, for catering purposes and also to make sure you have a place – tickets go quite quickly. Another date for the diary, Saturday 10th September for Ride and Stride. (note to book an electric bike from County Hire & Go).

Finally, we wish all schools, colleges and universities a fulfilling academic year with the hope that there will be fewer interruptions than in the past two years.

We also wish the new Head of School at Four Elms Primary, Jess Fernor, much happiness as she starts her new role.

Hever

This month St Peter's will act as a refreshment station for the annual Ride and Stride event on Saturday 10th September. Our energetic bell ringers will be cycling from Cudham to Hever and then ringing bells at a Hever wedding. Jane Rosam will be collecting sponsorship promises in the coming weeks so please give generously. The following Saturday we will be running our very popular barn dance for the first time since Covid. Please see the information on page 5 for how to book tickets and watch out for the family and "bring the gang" ticket deals.

The next Parish lunch will be held on Thursday 8th September starting at 12.30. We normally have between 18 and 24 people and serve soup, fruit and a delicious home-made cake. Everyone in the Parish is very welcome but it would be helpful for catering, if you can, to let us know that you are coming or have any special dietary requirements

WOW! What a Summer! Strangely enough the first time ever, we found ourselves wishing for the rain clouds to open!

But, a less expensive way of getting a tropical suntan. No hassle at the airport trying to get to the Seychelles or some other exotic destination for a holiday – no! Just sit in your garden.

So much to do in September! Normally September is the time to look after your lawn but not this year! Maybe take the opportunity to plant spring bulbs such as snowdrops, cyclamens and short stemmed daffodils under a tree and wait for the grass to grow again once there is rain and the temperature is compatible to the season.

It is the time to trim hedges, harvest your fruits and pick some of the delicious vegetables you have grown. Choose only perfect unblemished fruits wrapping some loosely in paper to store in trays so they aren't touching. Keep them somewhere cool and airy so they are ready to enjoy during the winter months.

Now is also the time to plant hardy annuals. Plants that need to be overwintered should be planted into pots of multi-purpose compost and moved into your greenhouse or onto window sills inside. Have you ever tried growing Wood Anemones in a planter or container? These can be started off now so that you have a display as early as late winter.

Now we have Autumn to look forward to, which will certainly bring a drop in temperature allowing us less 'heat resistant creatures' the opportunity to enjoy the forthcoming season. Raking up the precious fallen leaves ready to turn them into mulch for the following years is an import part of Autumn gardening. Having experienced this year's lack of rain mulching may be our best defence for the dry earth in our gardens. Mulch is a most important product to help retain moisture in the soil and also it will reduce weeds that will compete for the water supply.

Enjoy your garden!
