Welcome to the September Link

All hail the humble sparrow!
There are 50 billion of them according to a new estimate and such is their vigour that they are the most common bird on the planet, present on every continent apart from Antarctica.

Hedge sparrow

House sparrow

House sparrows are the only type of sparrow in the UK, hedge sparrows, also known as dunnocks, are in a different bird family called "Accentors". Only three other species - european starlings, barn swallows and ring-billed gulls - also have populations exceeding one billion.

"Sparrows Can't Sing" is a rather charming 1963 comedy drama film starring Barbara Windsor and set in London's East End - but they can! Or maybe they can't in that the song consists of chirps and squawks and is more enthusiastic than tuneful.

All hail also to butterflies who have been the noticeable winners from this climate-changed hot summer (and also figs which are ripening on the trees as never before). I have spotted many varieties including the hedge brown, similar to but more colourful than the meadow brown, and a prime pollinator named for its "rigorous patrol of hedges and woodland rides" according to the Woodland Trust. As the autumn approaches (where did the year go?!) the butterflies will hibernate, weave themselves into winter-resistant chrysalises or migrate south. We, however, look forward to the Hever Barn Dance, the Four Elms harvest supper and the film club - and much more too.

pet of the month

Rebel is a large (actually a very large) tomcat. We don't really know how old he is, as we inherited him, along with his name, about 5 years ago. Many say he is a dog in a cat's body - his recall is better than most canines. Stand at the edge of our house and call his name, he'll invariably come running at a lollipop. He's terrifically friendly to all humans, but he seems to have a preference for male humans over female humans. There's nothing he likes more than a rough-&-tumble, but if things become too feisty, he'll extract his claws and terminate the game sharpish! Somewhat surprisingly, he is also an accomplished mimic. His duck impression is extremely lifelike - when he quacks, you're convinced there's duck in the room.

Dogs, no matter how large or fierce, are terrified of him as he defends his territory with a swipe of the claw and a blood-curdling screech. His powerful build, mixed with a fearless mindset, mean he punches way above his fighting weight & is massively intimidating. Rebel is a killing machine, no mouse or rat is safe in our part of Four Elms. He dispatches without mercy, then eats the entire corpse, destroying any DNA evidence - the purrrfect crime. Many times he has returned from a night on a hot tin roof, with battle-scars to his head and ears.

Rebel, Rebel, your face is a mess
Rebel, Rebel, how could they know?
Hot tramp, I love you so.

Despite his macho demeanour, he really is a kitten (or a puppy) in a very large body. Like many males, of various species, he is not a complex character and is ultra-fixated on food. If you want to wheedle your way into his affections, merely fill his bowl with grub. When he's not killing things, fighting, quacking, or eating, he usually sleeps - because he has been neutered, other activities are not possible. We have a white duvet at home that he loves to sleep on. Because of his colouring, it's sometimes difficult to tell where the duvet ends and his fur begins. How does he keep his coat so white, I hear you ask? We don't have an answer to this.....maybe Persil Automatic (other washing powders are also available).

what I do

Local landowner Jan Boomaars manages to combine a busy job in the City with running an equally busy farm, he tells us what he does...

My farming story begins in Holland, where my family first took up farming in 1680. It was always my dream to continue the farming legacy and in 2004, my wife and I were very fortunate to acquire some beautiful farmland at Vexour Farm, near Chiddingstone. Back then it consisted of an old barn, which had seen better days, and some grass fields. Our vision was to create a forward-thinking farm, producing high quality livestock and cereals, while caring for the environment. Since then we have expanded to include mainly arable sites in Hever and the surrounding areas including Delaware Farm, Whistlers Farm and land between Four Elms, Chiddingstone Hoath and Cowden. In the Hever area this year we are growing oil seed rape and milling wheat, which have done surprising well, despite the challenging weather conditions.

At the heart of Vexour's operations are its prizewinning herds of Charolais, Aberdeen Angus, and Hereford cattle, alongside flocks of Texel and Charollais sheep. We work to the highest standards of animal welfare. Our cattle and sheep spend a large part of their lives outside on fresh pasture, only coming inside for the winter months. Vexour isn't just about livestock. Our arable farming plays a vital role in producing cereals like wheat, barley, oats, beans and rape seed for the food chain, using sustainable practices that protect soil health and biodiversity. We also make our own hay and straw for our animals.

That's usually around 2500 large square bales!

We have 8 very active bee hives on the farm which not only help to increase our crop yield by improving pollination, but also produce the most delicious honey. Crop rotation, wildlife-friendly margins, and careful land stewardship ensure that the farm contributes to both local food production and environmental resilience. Due to this year's hot dry June, we are harvesting weeks earlier than usual. You've probably already come across our tractors and combine harvester this July, busy working the fields and generally "making hay while the sun shines".

Behind the scenes at Vexour, we are very lucky to have a team of 7 passionate farming professionals, working to bring their own expertise, care, and innovation to the farm. From many a sleepless night during lambing and calving, to late night harvesting, no two days are ever the same. Local agricultural shows such as the Edenbridge and Oxted Show, and other community events are important to us. We also travel all over the country to show, buy and sell livestock, particularly in Scotland, a few times a year. We still find time to host numerous students, farmers, artists and societies, and talk to local primary school children about farming. For the last 10 years we have worked with a brilliant London based charity called The Garden Classroom to bring over 200 children from the inner city to camp at the farm each year. It is incredible to see how transformative a few days in the beautiful Kent countryside can be for the children.

dawn at vexour

Like many of you, I enjoy watching wildlife documentaries showing amazing birds and animals from around the world. However, it really is surprising how much incredible wildlife we have on our own doorstep. Sometimes all you have to do is take the time to stop and look – something many of us learnt to do during Covid but then forgot about as soon as life returned to its hectic normality.

Most of us will have experienced some sort of contact with wildlife – perhaps a tame fox frequents your garden or a mischievous squirrel raids your bird feeders. Some of us are even lucky enough to have visiting hedgehogs (I'm still waiting). Did you know the common belief that bread & milk is a good meal for hedgehogs is wrong? Meat-based wet dog or cat food, or hedgehog food which you can buy from a garden centre, are the recommended choices, but they'd actually probably be much happier just feeding on the insects and worms in your flowerbeds. Taking part in the annual RSPB Garden Birdwatch can be a great way to get your kids interested in the everyday birds that share their environment. However, Kent also gets its fair share of more unusual bird visitors. Last year, two spoonbills turned up at Bough Beech reservoir. These are large, exotic-looking wading birds with long, spoon-shaped beaks. White-tailed eagles have also been spotted at Bough Beech. These were reintroduced some years ago on the Isle of Wight but their territories have now expanded to Kent and Sussex. You would certainly know if you saw one, as nothing compares in size (they are known as “flying barn doors” in the birding world!).

Sevenoaks Wildfowl Reserve in Riverhead can also get rare visitors. Last Autumn a migrating osprey stopped off there on its way to Africa and stayed for three days because the fishing was so good. It gave spectacular displays of diving for fish to those lucky folk who happened to be sitting in the right bird-hide at the right time (sadly, I wasn't one of them!). Other rarities can crop up anywhere and sometimes in the most unexpected places. Two winters ago, there was an unusually large number of visiting waxwings due to a poor crop of berries in their usual Scandinavian feeding grounds. These striking birds are quite something to behold and can pop up anywhere where there are berry trees – I managed to catch up with some in the middle of a very modern housing estate in Uckfield but they were also seen in a car park at North Farm Industrial Estate!

Just last winter, we were lucky enough to have hawfinches at Penshurst church.

They were feeding on the yew trees at the back of the churchyard. Again, these are rare and stunning little birds with large chunky beaks for breaking seeds open. On Ashdown Forest, you can stumble across all sorts of rarities. Tree pipits are tiny brown birds with an extraordinary courtship display where they fly vertically up very high and then parachute down. Nightjars appear at dusk and make an amazing chirring noise before flitting about in the darkening sky, flapping their wings together to mark their territory. Nightjars are one of several very rare ground-nesting birds on the Forest, which is why it is so very important for dog-owners to keep their dogs under close control in the breeding season.

Of course, the best way to attract birds into your own garden is to have bird feeders with a variety of food on offer. Sunflower seeds will attract finches, peanuts will bring in blue tits and great tits and maybe even the beautiful great spotted woodpeckers if you are lucky. Fat balls appeal to just about everything but you can end up being mobbed by large flocks of starlings and jackdaws, so I tend to avoid them. Regular cleaning of your bird feeders is essential to avoid the spreading of viruses between birds. Other things that can be done to make your garden more wildlife-friendly include choosing plants which appeal to butterflies and bees and, if you have room, putting in a small pond to attract amphibians, dragonflies and perhaps even a grass snake. If you don't have room for a pond, just a shallow dish of water can benefit the birds, hedgehogs and other wildlife – even bees will come down for a drink and you will make their life easier if you put a little stone or stick in the water so they have a way to climb out if they fall in.

Nature is all around us and our wonderful birds and animals are there to be enjoyed. With our weather becoming more and more extreme, it has never been more important for us to give them a helping hand when we can.

As I write it's nearing 30 degrees yet again with no rain on the horizon!

We can't remember a year like it for the prolonged heat and dryness. Here at the nursery watering is like painting the Forth bridge. It's really got us thinking about water preservation and rain harvesting. We are now investing in new irrigation tanks that collect rainwater in the winter. This is something the domestic gardener can also do at home, with the use of water butts and tanks that connect to gutter downpipes. Of course you need the rain to top them up, but every drop saved counts!

We are also being asked the question what plants can tolerate long dry spells in summer? Two case studies worth studying are the 'Gravel Garden' at Beth Chatto's and 'Reimagining Delos' at Sissinghurst. Both gardens are worth a visit to gain inspiration for plant selection. Having talked to the head gardener at Beth Chatto's, the dry garden has never received any supplementary watering, even when it was first planted. When we visited, the Essex countryside was parched due to the heat, but the garden looked stunning! See photo on facing page.

'Delos' at Sissinghurst has been expanded this year and is settling in well. Designed by top designer Dan Pearson and head gardener Troy Scott-Smith, they have steered the garden to Vita Sackville-West's original vision. Both gardens lean heavily on Mediterranean shrubs, grasses and perennials to create multi-layered, long seasonal interest planting. If you check out Beth Chatto's website, there is a great montage of photos to show how the garden looks amazing for 12 months!

With both gardens, the soil/planting substrate is both poor in nutrients and is free draining. The problem we have here in Hever is that we are on Wealden clay, which is both nutritious and not free draining, especially in winter! There are a few options you can explore – import gravel/crushed concrete (this can be costly), when planting, dig the hole bigger and back fill with grit. The final option is to add plenty of organic matter in the autumn/winter as a mulch and let the worms do the work. This helps aerate the soil and makes it easier to work.

Let's pray for rain in September so we can plan for Autumn planting, including bulbs!

Recently the Four Elms Crossroads safety improvements have commenced with new signage and clearer road markings. We very much hope this will help to reduce the risk of accidents at the crossroads.

Warmer weather has seen an increase of visitors to Four Elms pond. With this, unfortunately, some visitors were not as respectful of the pond environment as they should be. We encourage anyone who witnesses anti-social behaviour or cruelty to the wildlife to report it to the police without delay.

The Annual Safety Inspection of the Four Elms play area and the Hever Field gym equipment has been received. Several items will be repaired and routine maintenance carried out. A refurbished board and map of the parish will soon be reinstalled in Hever.

Sevenoaks District Council has confirmed changes to bin collections across the district from Spring 2026. These changes will include a shift to bi-weekly rubbish collections and will bring increased recycling opportunities, including for food waste and glass.

The High Weald Walking Festival returns 13 September 2025 with 60 walks to choose from there is something for everyone. For more information please visit: <http://www.highwealdwalks.org/>

The date for the next Hever Parish Council meeting has been changed and this will now be held on Thursday 11th September 2025 in Markbeech Village Hall at 7.30 pm. The Planning Meeting will commence at 7.00 pm.

st johns wood clique spend a summer at hever castle

The artist Philip Hermogenes Calderon (1833-1898) was born in May 1833 at Poitiers, France - the son of a French mother and Spanish father who settled in London 1845. In the summer of 1866, Calderon rented Hever Castle and was joined there by other artists who were members of the St John's Wood Clique.

Philip Calderon 1863
by David Wynfield
(C)NPG

St John's Wood Clique

In the second half of the nineteenth century St. John's Wood in London became a popular location for artists, giving rise to the Clique. The group were particularly interested in historical subjects and specialised in paintings on medieval and Renaissance subjects. Calderon was the leader of the group, together with Frederick Goodall (1822-1904), George Storey and William Yeames. Whilst staying at Hever Castle Calderon painted 'Home after Victory', a semi-historical subject, the background of which was painted from the courtyard of the Castle.

William Frederick Yeames (1835-1918) was born in Russia, the son of a British Consul. After the death of his father in 1842 he was sent to school in Dresden where he began studying painting, later moving to London developing his skills in Florence and Rome. On return to London in 1859, he joined the St John's Wood Clique and joined Calderon at Hever Castle in 1866. He is best known for his painting "And When Did You Last See Your Father?" (1878). Yeames was married to the sister of the artist and photographer David Wilkie Wynfield (1837-1887) a distant relation of the Scottish artist David Wilkie, after whom he was named. Originally destined for the priesthood, he chose art as a profession and in the 1860's became part of the St John's Wood Clique. He latterly became better known for his photographs, in particular a series he made of contemporary artists in historical fancy dress, including Calderon, Yeames and Storey.

George Storey (1834-1919) was born in London, privately educated at Morden Hall School in Surrey, and continued his education in Paris before returning to London where he studied under J.M. Leigh and J.L. Dulong. He was initially strongly influenced by the Pre-Raphaelites but later established a reputation as a genre and portrait painter, as well as an illustrator. Storey moved in the same artistic circles as Whistler with whom he was apparently well acquainted, and he recalled at one time being patted on the head by Charles Dickens.

Summers at Hever Castle

The moat and castle at Hever, by Charles Essenhigh Corke, c.1900. EVMT: P2011.19091867. Wikimedia Commons.

In 1866, Calderon, Yeames, Wynfield and Storey along with their families, spent the summer at Hever Castle, forming a sort of large happy family. Calderon's wife was Storey's sister. Yeames wife was Wynfield's sister, and Wynfield (a batchelor) was accompanied by his mother. They invited and entertained other friends throughout the season including artists Henry Stacy Marks (1829-1898) who'd spent time in Paris with Calderon; and John Evan Hodgson (1831-1895). Hever inspired many works by the artists who stayed there. Wynfield spent most of his time trying to photograph Anne Boleyn's ghost but eventually determined that the conditions were not conducive to an appearance.

Storey felt his experiences that summer at Hever Castle brought about a turning point in his career leading to his painting 'After you' being exhibited in the Royal Academy the following year

(1867). Yeames specialised in Tudor and Stuart subjects, but also seemed to be rather accident prone, on one occasion accidentally walking into the moat. Calderon was probably the most prolific in the group. Spender lists paintings he produced during the summer using various rooms and other areas in Hever

Castle as backdrops, concluding that 1866 and the time spent at Hever led to it being a very good year for Calderon's career.

our rector's thoughts

In an interview last month, Kemi Badenoch, the leader of the Opposition and daughter of a Methodist minister, explained how growing up she had found strength from being a Christian but had lost her faith after reading about the abuse that the Austrian, Josef Fritzl, had inflicted on his daughter Elisabeth over 24 years – notwithstanding her prayers.

In contrast, there are calls for a National week of Prayer from 6th to 14th September, which reference the National Day of Prayer in 1940 that many believe was behind 'the miracle of Dunkirk'. You can see a clip at <https://www.nationalweekofprayer.uk/> which features Bear Grylls, describing prayer as a conversation with God. It is said that there are more people who pray than believe in God and I have very rarely found my offer to pray for someone refused – quite the reverse.

There is something enigmatic about prayer. The letters to the Times, provoked by Kemi Badenoch, bear this out with the writer, Rabbi Jonathan Romain, suggesting that prayer changes us rather than circumstances. Many would disagree. For example, 'the Eternal Wall of Answered Prayer' under construction near Coleshill, Birmingham, will feature one million bricks of answered prayers! This may be about what we think prayer is. It's far more than giving God a shopping list and ticking off the answers. There's a child's book we give out at baptisms, which sums this up as 'Wow God! Thank you – sorry – please' and is based on the Lord's prayer. Someone said prayer is about 'seeking more of God rather than more from God'. And yes, I, along with millions of others, believe God does answer our requests, big and small, in many different ways including changed circumstances.

The end of September/start of October is harvest time and we have our first Family harvest festival at Markbeech on 28th September. I am aware that farmers continue to have a tough time with the extended dry spell meaning many crops and grass have been slow to grow. I pray regularly with a farmer about this. As we give thanks that in our community, we don't go hungry, let's also pray for those parts of the world suffering from the impact of climate change and war. Maybe prayer is an acknowledgment that we aren't in control.

Here's some advice from St.Paul: Do not be anxious about anything, but in every situation, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 4:6-7). Why not make a start by coming to pray with us or have a look at the many prayer Apps like Lectio 365 <https://www.24-7prayer.com/resource/lectio-365/>

God bless you all

news from the pews

Four Elms

It's always good to learn something new and on Sunday 3rd August, in the absence of the Rector, the Rev. Ray Skinner presided over our Holy Communion at St. Paul's. As churchwarden I was a little puzzled to see the Reverend empty a large bag of beautiful Pink Lady apples. I thought the summer sun had gone to my head and I had overlooked Harvest Festival. I was relieved to learn that it was Lammas Sunday. Having lived in our rural village for many years I have to say I wasn't aware of the significance of the apples and Lammas Sunday. Lammas Sunday was a Christian holiday marking the blessing of the first fruits of harvest. Also translated as Loaf Sunday it marked, particularly, the wheat harvest. Bread was made from the first wheat and the loaf blessed with thanks given. We gave thanks for the apples and this year there is an abundance of fruit and berries on trees and bushes. There will certainly be plenty of blackberry and apple crumble in freezers!

Like many who read the Link, the anniversary of the dropping of the "A" bomb 80 years ago on a bright August morning has been a spectre which has given fear and foreboding throughout our lives. The genie is out of the bottle and can never be put back. We remember in our prayers the souls of all who perished and suffered with this horrific weapon of war and pray that it will be deterrent and not a weapon.

On a lighter note, The Friends of Kent Churches Ride and Stride takes place on Saturday 13th September. If you are able to participate, sponsor forms are available in the church. We would also welcome anyone willing to welcome riders passing our church, offering them a cold drink and biscuit and signing their sponsor forms. Please leave your name in church on the front desk if you are able to help. Following Lammas Sunday we look forward to harvest thanks. Our All Age Harvest Festival is on 5th October and the Four Elms Harvest Supper in the Village Hall is on Saturday 4th October. Everybody is most welcome to both occasions.

Hever

Have you got your tickets yet? Hever Barn Dance is taking place on Saturday, 13th September. There will be a delicious BBQ, lively music, and fantastic fun for all ages. Every penny raised will support our church outreach programmes, helping us make a real difference in the community. Look out for great deals, including FREE entry for primary school-aged children with a family ticket, plus discounts for early bookers. Tickets are now available from BookItBee.com – don't miss out!

Also taking place on 13th September is the annual Kent Churches Ride and Stride event. This is a wonderful opportunity to raise vital funds for churches across Kent through sponsorship. We need people to take part on behalf of the parishes in our Benefice, so please get in touch for more information or visit their website www.kentrideandstride.co.uk. Half of the money you raise will go directly to our church for local projects, while the rest supports the Friends of Kent Churches, who provide grants across the county.

Our faculty application for the proposed Anne Boleyn memorial in the Bullen Chapel has been submitted. We are hopeful and will bring you an update as soon as we can.

The next Parish Lunch will be on Thursday 11th September 12.30 for 1pm lunch. We normally have around 24 people and serve soup or sandwiches, fruit and a delicious home-made cake. Everyone in the Parish is warmly invited but it would be helpful for catering, if you can, to let us know that you are coming or have any special dietary requirements.

Markbeech

I was tempted to begin with echoing Four Elms “phew” from last month! This week, though glorious, is very, very hot! However, our Churches are cool so hopefully, tempting. The tomatoes are loving it, but the grass is not. As Simon has been away, August has been a relatively quiet month, but we did have a lovely service on Sunday, taken by a friend of Simon’s, Tim, who has known him for 40 plus years. A kind, interesting man who has “retired” in name only! We also enjoyed, towards the end of July, a wonderful Parish lunch in Clare’s glorious, but cool garden. Our next Service is on the 31st August at 10am.

Our Harvest Festival, mentioned last month, is on September 28th at a later time of 11am as it will be followed by a Harvest Brunch in the Village Hall – where you will all be very welcome of course. We are still looking for parents to help cater for children, and ideas for possible entertainment, please. We would also be glad to hear of anyone who would like to organise our Ride and Stride on the 13th September, please!

Do so hope that, by the time you read this, you have enjoyed a summer with friends and family. It has been such a joyful time with this sunshine, to revel in our beautiful surroundings. No need to go away, but always a treat to do so. I also hope that those who have been expecting exam results, are happy and excited about the next step.

you say tomayto and I say tomarto...

went the popular Fred Astaire song of the 30s, written by George Gershwin for the film "Shall we dance" starring Astaire and Ginger Rogers. The conflict in pronunciation was so important that the couple decided "let's call the whole thing off". There might be an argument about pronunciation, but who could imagine a world without tomatoes (technically a fruit but tested as a vegetable) taking a central role? Raw, canned, cooked in sauces, made into ketchup and spread across pizzas, tomatoes are everywhere. And as the growing season comes to an end I feel agonies of guilt about everything I have failed to harvest. A final push can result in green tomato chutney which is delicious.

And yet they have only been present in Europe since the 1500s, but didn't really catch on in Britain until the 1900s. They originated in South America and our word for tomato is Aztec. After Cortes invaded Mexico in 1521 a great exchange of food, animals and diseases between "old" and "new" world began. Named the "Colombian Exchange" after Christopher Columbus it proved fatal to up to 90% of the native populations of Central America and the Caribbean who had no immunity at all against killers such as smallpox, flu, plague, cholera and many others. But we got tomatoes and potatoes.....

At first the imported plants were treated as ornamental pot plants, their berries being as tiny as a blueberry and considered poisonous as they were members of the nightshade family. Evidence of their deadliness continued into the 1700s and aristocrats who ate them named them the "poisoned apple". What was in fact happening was that the acid from the fruit was dissolving the lead in their posh pewter plates and that was the problem: those who picked them off the plant suffered no ill effects. So finally they became a staple food and even the leaves, once feared as poisonous are considered safe in small quantities - so attempts to murder family members must be confined to mushrooms.

Ginger and Fred also fell out over the pronunciation of "potato" but what they didn't know according to recent research in China, was that nine million years ago potatoes evolved from a genetic mixture of wild Andean tomato plants and a plant called etuberosam. So the tomato is the mother of all potatoes - and of all other fruits too.
